

EMPOWERING CHANGE

This month we hear from author, speaker, and Christian leader Christy Wimber. Her dynamic TBN UK programme, Conversations With Christy, airs Tuesdays at 8:30 p.m., repeating Thursdays at 11 p.m. and Sundays at 1:30 p.m.

We're all really excited about the next series of my programme Conversations With Christy on TBN UK. It's clear that this new season came together in a way that was beyond my own planning and purpose. Of course, it's important that we plan and implement all we do with excellence. But the impact will not be complete without one essential element: the empowering breath of God's Holy Spirit.

As we were putting this series together it became evident that God's timing couldn't have been more ideal. We began to realise that the time is now to talk frankly about women in leadership—and how we can walk out our callings with honour and dignity. As we filmed these programmes I realised that the deep conversations we were having would be a great source of encouragement to many individuals.

Of course, it's no secret that across the Christian community today there are those whose theological model doesn't include a place for women in leadership. I also believe it is more than coincidence that women are increasingly finding themselves called to lead in such circumstances. I am convinced that it is all God-ordained, in order to compel the Church at large into a conversation about the Spirit-anointed role He has for every member of His body—including women.

As a woman who has pastored and been in church leadership for many years, I know what it is like to have others question and challenge God's calling on my life. By contrast, I also know what it means to have the support, encouragement, and affirmation of men of God in leadership. The important point here is that despite our personal opinions on the matter, this is an important conversation for the Church to be having here and now, because ultimately it's not about advancing women, but the kingdom of God.

In our new series of Conversations, we'll be tackling some core issues we all face, from balancing family and leadership responsibilities, and finding the right rhythm in a busy schedule, to knowing when leadership responsibilities are becoming too much and it's time to take a step back. Throughout the series we'll be dialoguing and hearing from seasoned leaders with great counsel that we all need to hear. And from time to time we'll also wade into some really tough topics, like facing mental health issues, dealing with domestic abuse, and more.

We're so thankful for the wonderful platform TBN UK provides to air so many great, life-changing programmes across the UK and beyond. And we're excited to have you join us for the next series of Conversations With Christy. Come expecting great things from God. You won't be disappointed!
